
A WOMAN WHO SAVED THOUSANDS OF CHILDREN

As we all know during Second World War the Jews were killed or used by German people who worked for Hitler. Even children were forced to work hard, poisoned or murdered. Their right to life was taken away. It was almost impossible to escape from Warsaw ghetto.

People who wanted to help Jews were also killed. Despite Irena Sendlerowa - polish activist who helped 2.5 thousands kids escape from hell on Earth. She lived in Warsaw where she came after graduating school. The woman was born in 1910 and since 1939 after explosion of Second World War she with ten trusted persons who helped her take the children out of the Warsaw ghetto. Irena was not do only that, she was also recording real data of this children with fake ones and she buried them in a jar under the tree.

This woman saved more than 2.5 innocent and defenseless lives. She was called "the mother of Holocaust's children". After years it brings hope that good can change our world and that being decent and not thinking only about yourself can make you a real hero even without a cape. :)

She is my inspiration because it is hard to find altruist nowadays. Irena did not think about herself but she thought about others. Irena was also modest because her story have not known until young students from USA in 90st. After theater play called "Life in a Jar". She has also received many prestigious awards. Irena died in 2008 in age 98 and till the end of her life she did not want to be called as a hero. She said that teachings of her father who said that you need to give a hand to man in need.
