

A horror story

My story begins at the University of Cathays, where many parties are held almost every day. One night the lighting specialists for the parties were very busy and with a lot of pressure on them since they needed to finish it before the students arrived, a girl climbed into the spotlights at a distance of 15m high. The girl did not support herself well and she fell from the lights and here the tragedy happened, since that day the university has not been the same again. Every day you hear noises, footsteps, open doors, even the doors close by themselves and the hand dryers turn on. Anyone who goes to this university at night would run away!!!!