

One person as peace on the world

We often hear about human rights, but are we aware of fact that they are broken? It was highly visible in 20th century. These people had very bad conditions of life and didn't have support. They were on dregs of society. I want to say about the woman, who changed it in large degree.

I felt very inspired about mother Teresa from Calcuta. She was born in Skopje in 1910. Her real full name was Agnes Gonxha Bojaxhiu. She was learning in school for a while, but she felt that it isn't her vocation. Because of that she adopted Italian citizenship and started missionary activity. She set up organisation – Love's Missionaries, because she was fascinated about mission from first years of her life. She was superior of the abbey, but she felt obligated to set up new monastery. Its aim was to work for the poorest people, helping them and functioning without institutions. Conditions in this monastery weren't satisfying. This is why in her mind appeared thought to return to previous, more comfortable one. She knew that in other way the poor dependent will stay alone. It convinced her to stay among them.

Now, let's take a look how exactly she improved the poor society's situation? I'm not sure if we know that mother Teresa wasn't rich person at all. She had to beg for food and supplies. Despite this, it wasn't obstacle to support circle who had even worse situation. While she was visiting people in slums, she gave them food and unnecessary things which they could use. She changed Hindu temples into hospice for the indigent. In 60th years of 19th century, in all India were opened hospitals, children's and sick's houses. While Beirut besetment in 1982, she saved 37 children through ceasefire between Israel and Palestine. She went through fire's zone to save small children's life. This all sacrifices was so admirable, that she got Peace Nobel Prize and her funeral was international event in India. United Nation's secretary said: „She is United Nation. She is peace on the world”

We see how this woman acted for miserable people rights. Even though she was poor, other person was very precious for her. If she didn't help needy, they would have less chance to live. Admirable is also fact that she could work in better and more comfortable conditions, but she chose others' good instead of her.
