

Dead man saved me

John was lived in New York. He was worked Amazon company, especially in the delivery department.

One night, John finished work early and the manager request John to work an extra hour to deliver someone his order. It was raining a lot that night and John had difficult driving. He checked the home address on his phone the house was too far, and he never been there before. As he approached the house, he had difficulty driving because it was rainy wind, and he was scared. He stopped driving and waiting for the rain to stop. After 15 minute the rain was stopped, he continued his driving. It was too late when he arrived home, he saw a house made entirely of wood and he knocked the door for three times. The house was very scary because it was dark. He stood the front of the door while no one opened it and he decided to leave, then he heard a sound from inside the house. The door was opened by a very thin man has big red eyes he looked bad and did not say anything he was scared. John said "sir, I'm late excuse me". He took his order and surprisingly laughed John said, "I want to go, goodbye". The man said to John would you like to attend my daughter's birthday party. John was really surprised by the request and said, "thank you" I'm coming from far away. The man said my daughter her boyfriend are not coming to the party so could you cut the cake with her together. John thought and said, "you finished your work already accept the man's his request".

He entered the house it was very scared house because of dark and had no lights. The man opened a room told John to come and sit in this room "I will call my daughter". The room was big in the middle there was table the house was not look like a party, he was sceptical. There was no birthday cake on the table the window was a glass and lightning were coming through the window. John was looking outside of the window suddenly the man was coming from behind and said, "happy birthday". John was very scared and the man said I like joking. John was sitting a chair he waited nearly five minutes. Suddenly he heard a loud noise was coming from the next room, then he slowly stepped forward to look at screaming person. He saw a man without legs, hands and eyes his clothes with a lot of blood. He was very scarred and found out this man is a killer. He immediately saw the man behind him and holding a knife in his hand, then he hit on his head John fainted. After a few hours John woke up found himself tied to a rope his hands and his head was bleeding. The killer entered the room he had heart with his hand and said, "I eat people". After that he was started to eat the heart and John said, "please leave me alone" but the killer said, "I will kill you".

He took a knife raised his hand and he tried to cut John's his neck. Eventually, the police opened the door and entered the room, then they shot the killer. John was delighted and asked the police how found out the killer house. Police told John the other man who was killed was a policeman, so they use GPRS on his phone. John that day was saved but he felt like a a dead man every time he remembered what happened.