

The secret love

A man and a woman were best friends. The thing that the woman did not know about was that the man had feelings for her but he could not find the right way to tell her. One night, he finally decided to tell her. The met each other in her friend's house. After a little bit of chatting they decided to play a game and the game was, each of them would ask one question to the other friends.

When it was finally the man's turn he asked the girl "Do you love anyone?"

Then she said "Yes I do, he is very handsome too."

When the man heard that his heart was about to stop beating.

"Do I know this lucky guy?" The man said.

She responded "Yes, you know him very well."

The man was wondering who it can be but he could not think of anyone.

The man then said "Tell us his name at least."

"No I will not but here take this paper, I have written his name on it. But do not look at it before you go home."

The man really wanted to know who this guy was, he was so curious.

As soon as he got home that night he unfolded the paper in anger but when he saw the name on it he was shocked. She had written "It is you Akar" (the man's name).

He was very happy and he could not even stand still. That night changed his life forever because now they are living a lovely life together. ♥